

*Is there a better orchestra in Britain than the Philharmonia?
I don't think so...the Philharmonia are the ones to follow."*

About the Philharmonia Orchestra and the Royal Festival Hall

Founded in 1945 the Philharmonia Orchestra is world renowned and has the greatest claim of any orchestra to be the UK's National Orchestra, performing over 150 concerts a year across the world to over 300,000 people.

The Philharmonia has worked with the world's leading conductors and artists including Principal Conductor and Artistic Advisor Esa-Pekka Salonen, Lorin Maazel, Daniel Barenboim, Riccardo Muti, Sir Simon Rattle, Christoph von Dohnányi and Gustavo Dudamel.

The Philharmonia is a UK Registered Charity and enjoys the Patronage of HRH The Prince of Wales.

While in London the Philharmonia is resident at the iconic Royal Festival Hall, the capital's premier arts venue, performing a season of over 40 concerts from September to June each year.

Following a major £100 million refurbishment the landmark Royal Festival Hall reopened to great acclaim in September 2007.
